

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A drainpipe embedded in a water-permeable layer of a water-dischargeable pavement body is molded by using as a constitutional material a material which is degraded or disintegrated and disappears the tubular shape thereof with the passage of time in a natural environment, for example, a biodegradable resin.